

Six Youths Dead In Accident

Mokena Citizens Pay Last Respects To Departed Youths

Mokena was a village of funerals Monday and Tuesday, and the peaceful and quiet cemeteries of St. John's Evangelical and St. Mary's Catholic, were the consumption of the victims of the auto accident which occurred a few days previous.

For several days, towns people and friends traveled to the Hirsch Funeral Home at Chicago Heights where the bodies of Dean Rueckert, George Hentsch and Marylou Hutson were resting and at the Dames Funeral Home in Joliet where the body of Edward Tierney was resting.

As Dean Rueckert and George Hentsch and Edward Tierney were veterans of World War 2, and members of Wm. Martin Post 725, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Mokena, they were accorded military honors and burial.

Standing on guard for them at the Hirsch Funeral Home, were: Comrades, George Lauffer, Bristol Lauffer, Arthur Hostert, Irvin Yunker, Earl Schoeneck, Robert Benson, Marshall Muller and Howard Jungles. At the Dames Funeral Home for Edward Tierney were: Charles Burkhardt, Kenneth Benson, Robert Frisch, Harold Balaz, Bud Nordsell and George Lauffer.

Francis Rinke

Funeral services for Francis Rinke, who passed away Saturday morning at Oak Forest were held Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock in St. Mary's Catholic church in Mokena with Rev. Eligius Weir, Chaplain at the Illinois State Penitentiary officiating.

The large over-flow crowd was attentive as the pastor spoke fitting words of comfort. Burial was made in the cemetery adjoining the church. The flowers were many and lovely.

Francis was born in Mokena, February 23, 1917, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rinke. On April 19, 1933 he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Ellen Schoen. To them were born three children: Judith, Virginia and Robert, who survive. Also surviving are his parents and a sister, Mrs. Marie Shultz of Oakland, California. Francis was employed by the Rock Island Railroad in their offices at Hamilton Park.

Dean E. Rueckert

At 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, in the St. John Evangelical church, services were held for Dean E. Rueckert with Rev. J. Frank Anderson, pastor of Tinley Park Methodist church officiating.

The flag draped casket in the church was surrounded by beautiful and profuse flowers. Mrs. Adolph Steen sang, "In The Garden" and "The Old Rugged Cross".

Active pall bearers were: Robert Benson, Robert Clark, Fred Clark, Arthur Hostert, Charles Burkhardt and Jack Horras. Honorary pall bearers were: Gordon Benson, Harold Balaz, Earl Schoeneck, Howard Jungles, Gordon Spiess and Norval Robinson, all comrades of World War II.

Burial was made in the Veteran's section of St. John's cemetery, Dean being the first veteran to be buried there.

The Wm. Martin Post, V.F.W., had charge of the services at the grave with Mr. Wm. M. Bollig, acting as Chaplain in the absence of the local Post's Chaplain.

Mr. Bollig handled the ritualistic work very beautifully and with feeling, assisted by Mr. Don Neal, Commander of the Wm. Martin Post. Mr. Bollig is an inspector for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, working out of the Chicago office in the Illinois department. He is a member of the Cantigny Post, V.F.W. in Joliet.

The salute was fired by members of the Matteson, Illinois, American Legion Post and the Taps were sounded by a Boy Scout of Frankfort.

Dean Rueckert was born in Deer Park, Illinois, August 15, 1934, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean E. Rueckert Sr. He came to Mokena with his parents in 1936. On August 1st, 1945 he was united in marriage with Miss Joan Tandy at Phoenix, Arizona, where he was stationed at the time. Dean served 3½ years in the army air corps and received his honorable discharge August 1, 1946.

Surviving are his parents: four sisters, Mrs. Jean Roeghiero of Lockport, Jo-An, Helen and Fayann.

George A. Hentsch

Returning from the cemetery, from the Dean Rueckert funeral, the same friends and veterans went to the Immanuel Lutheran church to attend the funeral for the third accident victim, George A. Hentsch. There again, was the flag draped casket amid many and beautiful flowers, sent by sympathetic and loving friends and relatives.

The pastor, Rev. Wm. Gode, officiated. Active pall bearers were comrades: Edward Hentsch, Chris Hentsch, Jack Nordsell, Gordon Spiess, Nick Heiman and Robert Clark. Honorary pall bearers were: Comrades, Norval Robinson, Harold Balaz, Gordon Benson, Clyde Yunker, Chas. Burkhardt and Clarence Werner.

George A. Hentsch was born in Mokena November 4, 1921, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hentsch. He entered the service of his country October 7, 1942 and served over seas in the European theatre in the 12th armored division of Gen Patch's 7th Army, for 8 months. He was wounded in battle, being the only one of his immediate group not to be killed. He was honorably discharged December 11, 1945.

Beside his parents he is survived by two brothers, Walter, a veteran of this war, and Irvin who is stationed at Kobe, Japan; also his grand father, August Hentsch, of Mokena.

The funeral cortege formed at the church and the Veterans and their Auxiliary members marched to St. John's cemetery with the long line of automobiles closely following behind.

The grave side service was in charge of the same Veteran personnel as that of the comrade, Dean Rueckert, buried (Continued on Page 9)

7 Mokena Young People In Auto Collision--One Survives

A pall fell over the village of Mokena last Friday morning, when word was received of a tragedy which came to seven young people of the village, as they were driving east on 159th St., early that morning. Those in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Dean E. Rueckert, Jr.; Miss Marylou Hutson, Edward Tierney, Kenneth Warning, George A. Hentsch and Francis Rinke.

They with other friends, had attended a softball game in Joliet Thursday evening, between the Veterans of Foreign War, Stone City Post, vs. the Mokena Robins, played on Heggie's field.

About four o'clock Friday morning, deputy sheriffs, Geo. Bennett, Harold Spiess and Everett Cooper were called by Cook County authorities, requesting them to come to the scene of an accident on 159th street, just west of the Wabash crossing, and which involved Mokena young people. Mr. Elmer Cooper was called to notify the victim's families.

The seven young people were in two cars. In the first car, a Chevrolet, driven by Geo. Hentsch, were Francis Rinke, Marylou Hutson and Edward Tierney. The second car, a Packard, owned by Clayton Cobsorn of Mokena and driven by Kenneth Warning, had Mr. and Mrs. Rueckert as passengers, all three being in the front seat.

The two cars were driving east about 1:30 Friday morning on 159th street, and apparently did not see in time to stop, a gasoline truck which was stopped ahead of them. It is said, there was a rather a hazy atmosphere in that area, coming from a peat bog.

According to Lt. Carl Relli of the Blue Island State Police Station, Stanley Zientarski of New Buffalo, Mich., had stopped at the Wabash crossing for a passing train. He was driving a truck for B Hannah Co. of Chicago. The tank was filled with 5,000 gallons of gasoline. The truck and autos were all driving east.

Mr. Zientarski said he had just started up and had not yet crossed the tracks. At that time he had reached a speed of about 5 miles per hour. The car driven by George Hentsch had struck the rear of the truck, and the car driven by Kenneth Warning, in turn, rammed into Hentsch's car. Both machines were completely wrecked. A passing motorist, going to work, stopped to give aid, and he went to a gasoline station corner 159th and route 45, 1½ miles east and reported the accident. In a short time, the State police came with ambulances, and it was found that Dean Rueckert, George Hentsch and Marylou Hutson had been instantly killed. The others were critically injured and were removed to the Infirmary at Oak Forest where Edward Tierney passed away Friday evening at 8 o'clock and Francis Rinke at 6 A. M. Saturday.

Friday morning, Mrs. Ethel Warning, removed her son Kenneth to Silver Cross hospital in Joliet where he is reported, doing nicely, he being the least injured of all. Kenneth suffered a broken knee and wrist. Mrs. Dean Rueckert was severely injured, some 200 stitches being taken on her side. She passed away in the Infirmary Tuesday evening, August 27 at 9:20.

An inquest was started at Oak Forest last Friday morning, in Cook County as the accident occurred in Cook County.

There was not a home in Mokena but was filled with grief over the sad affair, as everyone knew one or more or all the victims, or knew their families, or in some way was affected by the sadness which cast a gloom over the whole community.

Even tho, the annual Homecoming was held as advertised, everyone was shocked, and neighbor spoke with neighbor, with a sad heart, and everyone tried to do something to alleviate the grief that the loved ones were bearing. The officials of the Civic Association tried to call off the Homecoming, but as contracts had been signed, there was no retreating, and with a heavy heart, the people of Mokena tried to be good hosts to their visiting friends and relatives, who came to the Homecoming, and which was a success, in spite of all these handicaps.

As the military section of the parade which took place Sunday afternoon, approached the Honor Roll of those who entered the armed service of World War 2, on Front street, a halt was made before it, and a service was conducted by the members of the Wm. Martin Post, V.F.W., in honor of the two accident victims, Dean Rueckert and George Hentsch, whose names are inscribed on that Roll. The latter was draped in black crepe and a wreath was placed at the foot.

Gordon Spiess, Officer of the Day, was in command of this part of the service, calling for the halt and facing to the Honor Roll plaque. Stepping forward from the group with Gordon Spiess was John Egan Chaplain of Cantigny Post VFW of Joliet, who stood at attention before and facing the honor roll plaque with hands at salute in honor of their departed comrades, for three silent moments.

Attorney Charles Elder of Mokena, a past president of the Sons of the Revolution, spoke explaining the origin of the Civic Association which was sponsoring this Homecoming. He told of the need for co-operation between all peoples and groups of the village, paying respect to those members who had labored hard for the success of the Association, who had the far-sightedness of it becoming a constructive and lasting organization.

At the completion of Mr. Elder's talk Chaplain John Egan, in the absence of the local VFW's chaplain, spoke, calling to mind the valor of the two departed veterans; how they answered the call of their country and returned safely, and met their death at home.

Hossbach-Seeman Nuptials At Frankfort

Sunday evening, August 25th at 7:30 o'clock, St. Peters Evangelical and Reformed church of Frankfort, was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Miss Marion Hossbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hossbach, and Howard Seeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Seeman were joined in marriage, by the Rev. Erich Bizer. The double ring ceremony was used.

Preceding the service, Mrs. E. Bizer played a number of love song selections and also accompanied Miss Catharine Lambrecht as she sang, "Because", "O, Perfect Love", and "The Lord's Prayer".

During the lighting of the candles by the ushers, Mrs. Bizer played softly, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds".

To the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal march, Miss Shirley Haake entered, dressed in pink chiffon with blusher to match. The matron of honor, Mrs. Orville Chinkowski, sister of the groom, was attired in blue chiffon and blusher. Both carried colonial bouquets.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a sheer white gown with a long train and a finger tip veil. She carried a powder-puff bouquet of white gladioli.

Attending the groom were his brother, Delbert Seeman and the bride's brother, Willbur Hossbach.

Ushers were: Norman Hossbach, brother of the bride and Norman Christiansen, cousin of the groom.

The mothers of the bride and groom wore navy blue with red rose corsages. Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Seeman have gone on a short wedding trip.

Joan Rueckert, Sixth Tragedy Victim Dies

After a struggle of five days, without regaining consciousness, Mrs. Joan Rueckert who was severely injured in the auto accident last Friday morning in which seven Mokena young people were involved, passed away in the Oak Forest Infirmary Tuesday evening at 9:20 o'clock, being the sixth victim of that accident.

Her husband was killed instantly at the time of the crash, and Mrs. Rueckert was removed to the Infirmary with three other members of the party. Her parents have been in constant attendance and were with her when she passed away.

Mrs. Rueckert, nee Joan Tandy, was born April 7, 1924 in Quincy, Ill. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tandy of Liberty, Ill.

On August 1, 1945 she was united in marriage with Dean E. Rueckert, Jr., at Phoenix, Arizona. They were transferred to Chanute Field, March 9, 1946 and lived there until her husband received his discharge on August 1, 1946. They then moved to Mokena and were making their home with her husband's parents.

The remains are at the Hirsch Funeral Home in Chicago Heights until this noon when the body will be taken to St. John Evangelical church, Mokena and lie in state until 2 p.m., when services will be conducted by the Rev. J. Frank Anderson of the Tinley Park Methodist church. Burial will be at the side of her husband in the veterans section of St. John's cemetery.

Mrs. Rueckert is survived by her parents and one brother Clelan Tandy of Liberty, Ill.

First Village Board At New Lenox

It is now past history. The first election of the Village of New Lenox. It was held last Saturday August 24 and 228 votes were cast with four ballots being spoiled. The 228 votes represented about 35 percent of the registered voters.

There were many write ins for trustees and five write ins for president of the board.

The final result was: For president of the Village board, F. Carlton Cole, who received 186 votes. He lead the other candidates in having the largest number of votes. Mr. Cole is associated with the American National Bank of Chicago.

The six trustees elected were: Howard R. Ayres, 172 votes; Walter H. Baers, 161, George F. Koeller, 159, Leonard A. Rought, 149, Charles Reeser, and Everett Merfeld 141.

Eight candidates were nominated for trustees and the two who were not elected were: Joseph Yeager who received one vote short, 140; and R. Russell Mangum, who received 130.

Maynard W. Brockman received 118 votes and his opponent Theodore Zusag got 85 votes.

Steve McGovney was elected as police magistrate with 20 votes and Otto Borset lost by two votes for the same office.

The Board cannot take office until acting County Judge approves of the election.

One of the first problems confronting the newly named officers of the village, which was just incorporated a few months ago, will be the matter of the 1946 appropriation for which taxes are collected in 1947. Because the deadline for filing an appropriation would be in August, it seems apparent that the village officers will have to serve until the first of the year without cash remuneration. At that time an appropriation for 1947 can be passed.

The officers elected yesterday will serve only until April, unless re-elected when the first regular general election for the village takes place.

The treasurer for the village will be named by the board of trustees, or aldermen, as they will be better known

Vacant Chairs To Be Draped

According to officers of the Wm. Martin Post 725 VFW, of Mokena, it is their plan to observe the month of September as a month of mourning in respect to their two comrades and officers who have just passed away.

At the regular meeting in September, the 12th and the 26th, the chairs occupied by George Hentsch, who was Senior Vice Commander, and Edward Tierney, who was a Trustee, will be draped in black and a wreath placed on each vacant chair.

At the regular meeting in October an election will be held to fill these vacancies.

KENNETH WARNING

The only one of the seven young people of Mokena who survives the auto accident of last Friday morning is Kenneth Warning, son of Mrs. Ethel Warning of Mokena. Kenneth was driving the Packard car.

He received injuries to his knee and a broken wrist. He is in Silver Cross hospital and reported doing nicely.

The form of government may be changed at any time by referendum vote of the village.

The major job now before the officers will be to set up an organization for carrying out the various functions of local government.

Married In St. Jude's Church New Lenox

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muldoon of New Lenox announce the marriage of their daughter Veronica S., to Peter Raich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Raich, of Joliet. The wedding took place Saturday morning August 24 at 9:30 o'clock mass with the Rev. Father Reynold Klaes officiating at the double ring ceremony.

Vases of beautiful white mixed bouquets decorated the altar.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march. "Ave Maria" and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother" were also played on the organ during the ceremony.

Miss Jean Ann Morris of Joliet, was the maid of honor, and Nicholas Raich, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride was attractive in a white crepe suit with navy blue accessories. She wore a small white hat with a white veil and wore a corsage of gardenias. The maid of honor wore a powder blue suit with a small white hat with veil and white accessories. Her corsage was of gladioli.

The brides mother wore a black summer dress with white accessories and a corsage of gladioli, while the groom's mother wore a black and white summer dress with white accessories and a corsage of gladioli.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church dining room for relatives and friends. A buffet luncheon was served from a large table covered with white, and centered with a beautiful wedding cake. Bouquets of flowers decorated the dining room.

More Profits When Electricity Is Used

Extra Hired Hand One Of Advantages Offered

Electric lights to reduce fire hazards, increase the workable hours in a farm building; electric water systems to save time and essential water for crops and animals when needed; corn and hay driers to save crops; ultra-violet irradiation lamps to prevent meat spoilage and increase health of brooder chicks; electric power tools in the shop to save machinery and time; electric welders which make it possible to repair or make many items for the farm—these are only a few of the uses to which electricity may be put on the farm.

Coin vending machines will soon bring a drink of milk within easy reach in subway stations, office buildings, factories and apartment buildings and hotels, according to plans announced recently.

Completely sterile, the milk dispenser has the approval of the New York city department of health and research laboratories. First distribution of the machines is scheduled for early fall.

Parts of the machine which come in contact with the milk, including the can and syphon, will be sterilized. Milk flowing into the container is sucked up through the syphon.

DDT Is Not a Panacea

For All Known Pests

The most promising insecticide discovered, DDT nevertheless has many disadvantages, says George C. Decker and Carl J. Weinman of the University of Illinois. It is not effective against cotton boll weevil, plum curculio, chinch bug, Mexican bean beetle, cattle grub, screwworm and red spider.

It does have a long-lasting effect. Applied indoors to walls, screens and floors.

IT ALWAYS has been our belief that the time to compare athletes is at the end of their careers. For example, why try to compare Ted Williams, after five seasons, with Ty Cobb's 24 seasons?

Why try to compare Bobby Jones, retired for 16 years after winning 13 national and international championships, with Byron Nelson who so far has won 37. And don't forget that Jones ran 1-2 in the U. S. Open eight out of nine years.

Ted Williams and Byron Nelson have many years left in which they may rise to even greater heights, or for one reason or another suddenly fall away.

I recall just about the outbreak of the war when more than a few were placing Joe DiMaggio above Tris Speaker as an all-around outfield star. DiMaggio was and still is a great ball player. But even Joe's most vehement supporters today wouldn't place him above the flight of the Gray Eagle, the class of all outfielders in the air or along the ground, who could also hit from .350 to .386 in his better seasons through a long stretch of time.

Take Ty Cobb and Ted Williams. Few pitchers could. Ted Williams is the longer, harder hitter. But how many remember that Ty Cobb led the American league nine years in a row — that he led the American league in 12 out of 13 consecutive seasons. Think that one over.

What hitters were in Cobb's road? What was their class? Practically no one except Shoeless Joe Jackson, Napoleon Lajoie, Tris Speaker, Babe Ruth, Wahoo Sam Crawford, Bobby Beach and a few of that ash-tinted ilk.

I see they are now comparing Bob Feller and Walter Johnson, certainly two of the greatest. No one can tell me that Bob Feller or anyone else had Johnson's speed. Feller has a greater variety. But Johnson's speed was enough. They usually beat him 1 to 0 or 2 to 1 and even working with a weak-hitting outfit, he still could win more than 30 games a year pitching against some of the great hitters of all time. But none of these great hitters was on Old Barney's side. The idea is that Johnson has already turned in his 20-year record. Feller still has many years to go.

Feller isn't working with much of a ball club, either. He is to a certain extent in Johnson's spot. Johnson, pitching for the Athletics in those days, could have won 40 games more than once. Feller, working with the Red Sox, could be another 40-game winner. There will be time enough later on to rank Johnson and Feller.

'Old Pete' Alexander

If you talk to hitters who faced him and who have been around, they won't nominate Walter Johnson or Bob Feller as the top master of the pitching tribe. They won't give you Cy Young who won 510 or Christy Mathewson. Their nominee is an entry known as Grover Cleveland Alexander, also known as "Old Pete."

Working with the lowly Phillies, Alexander won 31 games in 1915, 33 games in 1916 and 30 games in 1917, a total of 94 games in three consecutive years with a ball club that never belonged — outside of Alexander.

In 1916 he pitched 16 shutout games, most of them in the Phillies' bandbox park. Through six years, he had an earned run average under two runs per game. As a rookie in 1911 he won 28 games with the lowly Phillies.

Alexander was a stretcher bearer with the army in 1918, one of the tough jobs of any war. He then had been pitching seven years. On his return to the Cubs in 1919 and 1920, he allowed 1.72 and 1.91 earned runs per game, an incredible performance. Through his career Old Pete had no interest in any form of training. He happened to be an eccentric genius, a great artist, which so few are. He knew exactly where the ball should go to certain hitters, and he could put it there too.

Johnny Evers, who had batted against the best, once told me that Alexander was the only pitcher he ever faced who made him feel like throwing his bat away. "I knew how useless it was," Evers said.

Cardinal Class

Overlooking the boisterous and heartfelt boos from Brooklyn, the Cardinals have been the class of the league from the start. They have had no better ball players than Dixie Walker and Pete Reiser and Peeewe Reese.

But no sane baseball follower can tell you that the hustling Dodgers have the class to match Stan Musial, Marty Marion, Country Slaughter, Red Schoendienst, Terry Moore and Whitey Kurowski.

THE STORY THUS FAR:

The crew of a small sailing vessel in the Caribbean pick up Dick Jordan, adrift on a raft. Dick realizes that he is among men who are virtually pirates. They come upon a drifting schooner, with only two people aboard. They are the demented captain and his daughter, Rose, Tucu, the pirate captain, attempts to take the schooner by force, but is driven off by Rose, assisted by Dick. During the night Tucu returns and they take Dick and Rose prisoner. Tucu then begins searching the ship for the "treasure." Tucu finally leaves with nothing. He takes Dick with him, but Dick escapes and swims back, to find Rose battling a black pirate.

CHAPTER VII

The shock of the explosion startled Dick so that his hands unconsciously relaxed their grip and the big Carib rolled from him. He was so dazed that it took him some time to realize that Rose had come to his assistance at the critical moment, putting the Carib where he could commit no further deviltry, with a bullet through his brain.

Captain Bedford had been knocked on the head and left for dead by the Caribs before they attacked Rose in the cabin.

They found him hunched up in the scuppers, where the sea brine was threatening to finish what the blow on the head had failed to do. They carried him to the cabin and placed him on a bed, and, while Rose worked over him to restore him to consciousness, Dick quietly removed the dead bodies of the Caribs and dropped them into the sea.

With this unpleasant task finished he glanced at the sky before returning. The schooner was laboring heavily in the sea, rolling and plunging like an old bull walrus, every seam groaning under the strain. The gale was playing havoc with what was left of the sails and rigging.

"This means her finish," he muttered. "She can never ride through a second storm."

He returned to the cabin where Rose had partly revived her father through the liberal use of his favorite stimulant. He was far from being dead. It took more than a Carib's bludgeon to kill the doughty New England skipper, born and bred on the water, giving and receiving blows as a part of his daily life for half a century or more.

Rose glanced up at his entrance and smiled.

"He'll recover," she said simply. Dick nodded gravely, but did not return the smile. He was worried, and could not conceal the fact from her.

"What're we going to do?" he asked. "The schooner is rocking and shaking like an old man with the ague. She'll never hold together until morning."

"The Betty of New London," she replied slowly, a gleam of pride in her face, "was built in the days when ships were made to hold together and not fall apart in the first storm. Her keel's of hard white oak, and her ribs of the best hick-matack. She'll ride through this storm as she did the other."

"We'll pull through," he said, "but it's going to be a narrow squeeze. The wind's blowing great guns, and the seas are playing the devil with the wreckage—using it as a ram to batter in the sides."

"Yes, but we can stop that. Were you ever a sailor?"

Dick shook his head. "Nothing but an amateur. I could sail a yacht, and maybe qualify for a second-rate seaman. That's about all."

"Then I'll take command," she replied quietly. "You'll take orders from me?"

"Aye! Aye! At your service, Captain Rose!"

He touched his forehead in salute and clicked his heels in true military form. Her face was very grave, not a flicker of a smile lighting it up.

They Rig Up a Sea Anchor

"It's going to be a hard night for both of us," she went on. "We can't raise any of the sails, and if we could the wind would blow them to tatters. But the schooner's wallowing broadside to the waves. We must stop that or we'll go under."

"Quite right, Captain. But how are we going to do it? She won't obey her rudder with any sail."

"No," she answered shortly. "But there's that wreckage. It may save us yet. We must get axes and clear it away before it's too late."

"Aye! Aye, Captain. But you mustn't risk your life in that work. Let me do it."

She made no reply, but began pulling an oiled slicker over her shoulders, nodding to Dick to do the same. She selected two stout axes from a rack, and after handing one to him started for the companion. Dick started to protest. "This isn't your work, Rose. Leave it to me. I'll follow orders."

"Then do as I do," she replied curtly.

Her plan was simple in explanation but difficult of execution. The schooner was wallowing loggily in the seas, half buried at times by the brine, but the crash of the wreckage against the outboard was the most alarming thing. It threatened to smash the bulwarks and shiver the timbers of the hulk to splinters. Either that had to be removed or the Betty was doomed.

But Rose's idea was to use the thing that menaced their lives for saving the schooner. By cutting it loose from the side, and fastening it with tow lines, the wind and waves would convert it into a sea anchor.

Dick attacked the wreckage nearest him with his axe.

"Make your lines fast first," she cried, intercepting him, "or we'll lose it."

With three slack lines running from the mass of wreckage to the forward towing bits, they were ready to cut away the rigging that held the battering ram in position. They hacked steadily at ropes and wire rigging, cutting in water sometimes a foot deep. They were drenched to the skin, and nearly exhausted when all but a single line was severed.

Rose raised her axe to cut this. Dick seeing her danger shouted to her, but she did not hear. The rope parted with a loud snap and withering and twisting like a sea serpent it struck up and caught the girl as if it had been the tentacle of an octopus. Dick saw her stagger under the blow, fall to the deck, and then with the rope twisted around her she was carried overboard as the released wreckage brought the line taut.

One horrified glance, and he was after her, plunging recklessly into the green brine. In his leap he caught the slack end of a short rope and clung to it. With his other hand he clutched her skirts.

Fortunately the snake-like line that had wrapped itself around her waist unwound as quickly as it had coiled. Dick held her limp figure in one arm, and with the other fought to pull himself back on deck.

The struggle lasted for only a few minutes, but to Dick it was an age before he finally got a hand on the rail and with the aid of a gray-back lifted Rose over it and rolled on deck.

Exhausted by his supreme effort, he lay there, clasping the girl.

Rose stirred first, coming to her senses with a little sigh. She was too dazed for a moment to understand the meaning of it all. Dick clasped her still tighter.

Dick Tries His Hand At Nursing

"What happened?" she breathed faintly.

"Everything!" he laughed, recovering his breath. "We cut the wreckage loose, and it's working beautifully. We're no longer wallowing like a grampus. The Betty don't deserve her name if she doesn't ride out the storm now."

She sighed again from sheer physical weariness. For the first time she seemed to be conscious of his arms around her.

"Did—did I faint?" she faltered.

"No, that last line jerked you overboard. I got you just in time. In another minute, we'd both been lost."

She considered a moment in silence. Then in a low voice that would not have reached him if her lips had not been close to his ears: "You—you jumped overboard for me?"

"I caught you before it was too late," he replied.

Dick helped her into the cabin where she fell exhausted on the bed beside her father. While he hunted around for a stimulant, she closed her eyes and drifted off into a doze. She accepted the drink he applied to her lips, sipping it slowly, and under its stimulating effect the color crept back into her cheeks.

Dick stood before her, watching her with greedy eyes. The nearness of death had shaken him fully as much as her and he had difficulty in keeping back the emotion that threatened to overwhelm him.

"You seem to be in command now," she said, smiling faintly when he ordered her to take another sip. "Yes," he laughed. "It's the sea and case of mutiny aboard the Betty."

His words recalled the other time when her authority had been ignored and the crew deserted. She frowned and closed her eyes again. "You can imprison me later," he went on, "but until the storm's over I'm captain, and my first order is that you keep in the cabin and not appear on deck again."

"I can't do that," she replied, shaking her head. "There's too much to do."

"Not for you. I can handle it."

"Not alone."

"Yes!"

He pushed her gently back when she attempted to rise.

"You'll have to stay here if I have to tie you," he added gently but firmly. "We're in no real danger now. The sea-anchor's holding her nose up in the wind and waves. If she hasn't sprung a leak we'll ride safely until morning."

"If she's leaking we must man the pumps!" she exclaimed, attempting to rise again.

"All right! Stay here until I find out. I'll report to you."

Doubtfully and unwillingly she agreed to this. Dick made her comfortable, and then started up the companion to see how much water the ship carried in the hold.

Ten minutes later when he returned she was sleeping, with one brown arm thrown across her breast, the other limply crooked above her head. The hair, disarranged by the storm, fell in tangled strands over her shoulders and neck.

Unmindful of the shriek of the wind and tumultuous roar of the waves, he sat by her side, silently watching her comely face and youthful figure, his eyes glowing with yearning desire. He stretched forth a hand to touch her arm, to stroke her hair, to caress a cheek, to clasp a limp hand in his and press it to his lips; but he did not touch her, nor permit his fingers to come in contact with the bed or clothes.

Instead he drew back slowly, as if actuated by some subtle force that was stronger than his newly awakening love brushing his eyes with a trembling hand. His face grew suddenly pale and drawn, adding years to his age. As a fugitive from justice, with a price on his head, he had no right to touch her—no right to drag her into the net that entangled him. The wreck of the steamer had temporarily freed him, but Pettigrew would take up the search and run him down.

He could not elude the law for long; it had hounded him persistently for two years, driving him from pillar to post, and when he had felt the safest, found him buried in a small, obscure corner of South America, living under an assumed name, and started him back to answer for the crime he had never committed. He could never feel safe again!

First Hints of Love Come to Dick and Rose

An unconscious groan escaped his lips, followed by a bitter laugh, the sound of it filling the narrow cabin and awakening the slumberer. Her eyes opened and stared at him in bewilderment. Then, with returning intelligence, she smiled, and with an impulsive little gesture thrust both hands out to him. The gesture, simple and innocent, was the unconscious feminine invitation of love, and Dick, knowing she had betrayed her feelings, groaned inwardly and stood in indecision, struggling with himself.

"You saved my life, Dick," she said simply. "Is there anything you want of me?"

The atmosphere of the cabin grew hot and stifling to him, so that he breathed heavily; a giddy sensation swept over him; his hands trembled with passion, and he moved swiftly toward her to seize what belonged to him. But he checked himself in time, stopping abruptly at her side. He was so near he could have touched her, but he slowly folded his arms, and forced a smile to his lips.

"Your friendship, Rose, always," he said gently. "You'll give me that—no matter what happens?"

She gazed up at him in bewilderment, a hurt expression coming into her eyes, such as you see in a child's denied some precious wish. The hands slowly dropped to her side and the lips murmured so faintly that the words were almost inaudible:

"Yes—always! How could you doubt it?"

The Betty of New London proved worthy of her namesake—if tradition be true that the original Betty was a staunch little craft who broke hearts galore and lived to see most of her loves married or buried at a good old age—and when morning dawned, with breaking clouds and a warm sun, she was still riding on an even keel, with none of her timbers smashed or weakened.

Forward the sea-anchor held, bobbing up and down on the waves like a sodden mass of driftwood, with the tow lines slackening and jerking rhythmically as the schooner backed and lurched in its struggle to break loose from them.

Neither Dick nor Rose had slept throughout the night; they had to keep constantly on watch.

JESUS AND RIGHT USE OF PROPERTY

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:15; Proverbs 30:7-9; Matthew 5:23-35.
MEMORY SELECTION—But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also (Matt. 6:20-21).

Labor Day tomorrow! And much in the thinking of all America will be the right division of the fruits of investment of time and money. Property rights are fundamental. God's Word teaches us the proper attitude toward our own rights and the rights of others; namely, honesty, yes, just plain old-fashioned honesty.

In such a time, the believer in Christ needs to be doubly vigilant lest he accommodate his own standards of honesty to those of the world.

I. Honest in Purpose (Exod. 20:15). We cannot tolerate anything in word or deed that can be regarded as stealing what belongs to another. The very commandment against stealing implies that men have a right to that which they have made, earned or saved.

If no one had any property rights there could be no stealing. Some of our modern political and social isms deny such rights, but their reasoning is clearly not biblical or Christian.

"Thou shalt not steal," forbids every kind of theft, and this includes more than robbery or ordinary stealing (see Lev. 19:11-13).

It relates to every kind of false dealing with another, such as oppression or the withholding of just wages. That, too, is stealing in God's sight.

Perhaps we ought to be more specific and apply the truth to our own day. Stealing includes such things as looting on one's job, borrowing money from the cash drawer, taking goods from the stock with which one is working, stealing another man's sermon and preaching it as one's own, lifting material out of another man's book without credit, contracting debts which one can never pay, using false weights and measures, adulterating food or other material, "watering" milk for sale, selling worthless stock, dodging taxes or lying to the tax assessor, or using a slug instead of a nickel in the telephone to escape proper payment.

One might add gambling (which is taking another man's property by skill or by chance), making an unduly large profit on the labor of another, making money out of the sorrows and failures of others, etc. To be honest means to be fair, and that has broad implications.

II. Humble in Practice (Prov. 30:7-9).

It may sound a little odd to hear this man pray that he should be delivered from prosperity. To ask to be kept from poverty is certainly to make a wise request, but to be delivered from riches, why that's certainly not sensible. So reasons the world, but as usual, it is entirely wrong.

Experience has demonstrated that the man who has an abundance of good things usually becomes self-satisfied, assuming that he deserves the credit for his affluence, he forgets God, and what had been a good and useful life is soon destroyed.

On the other hand, it is true that extreme poverty tends to break down a man's morale. Watching his family starve is not conducive to honesty if a man can lay his hands on something to save them, whether it be his or not. We do not justify stealing at any time, but we can well understand that starvation can turn the mind of a normal man into abnormal channels.

III. Heavenly in Principle (Matt. 6:25-28).

The Bible is concerned almost entirely with life on this earth. It tells us very little about heaven except how to go there. But (and here is the important point for us just now) it does give us laws from heaven for life on earth. Our life here, our attitude toward property, is to be heavenly in principle.

We are not to be anxious (the correct translation of "take no thought," vv. 25, 27, 31) about our life, about food, raiment and other necessary things. Proper forethought is all right, but worry? Never!

How shall these things be provided? God will provide. Consider the birds. Do they have nervous breakdowns about where their food and shelter are to come from? They cannot even pray and they are not able to work, and yet God feeds them.

Consider the glory of the flowers of the field, for not even a king can dress as they. The Lord does it. "Are ye not much better than they?"

What about the future? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands what could we do with it? Even tomorrow with its needs, its blessings, its joys and its sorrows is not here yet, and when it does come there will come with it God's gracious provision (v. 34).

Household Hints

Milady's dresser need not be marred by lotion or perfume spots if a piece of waxed paper is placed directly under the dresser scarf.

When planning the location of a new building for the farm, keep in mind the possibilities in labor-saving arrangement as well as appearance.

Fasten all usable snap fasteners taken from all garments back together on a snap card. This saves time and tempers while looking through a drawer for them.

Line the lower edge of dad's trouser pockets with a piece of chamois. This material is sturdy, and keys and other objects he carries in his pockets won't quickly wear through it.

Do not hang glass or china cups by the handles. They may chip or crack and finally break off entirely.

New Service Instituted By The Public Service Co.

During the first 12 months of operation, the Territorial Information Department of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois answered 2,058 inquiries about northern Illinois, the utility reported.

During the year the department received 138 requests for industrial plant facilities requiring a total of 3,911,200 square feet of space. A monthly record of the number of inquiries ranged from a low of 38 in August, 1945, to the peak month of 353 in April, 1946.

Companies sought industrial sites in the area to manufacture a wide variety of products, including vending machines, batteries, radios, farm implements, plastics, factory trucks, chemicals and candy.

Special surveys were developed upon request by research analysts on such widely separated subjects as natural resources, transportation, construction, population trends, dollar value outputs and taxes.

Evidencing the far-reaching effect of the department's promotional campaign in behalf of northern Illinois, inquiries were received from 40 states and the District of Columbia, Alaska, Canada, China, Cuba, England, Holland, India, South Africa, South America and Sweden.

Soil Improvement Is A Sound Investment

"Invest at home". The idea behind this statement, says Mr. Gaskill, Chairman of the local AAA Committee, might well be applied by all farmers to their own operations. We have had some pretty good years in agriculture, continued Mr. Gaskill, and most of us have made a little money. Yet, we have worked our lands hard to do it—drained them of some of their original fertility. Good common sense dictates that some of these profits should be returned ed to the land. Many farmers, too, will find it a more profitable venture to improve the land they already have than to buy more land—more profitable to spend some of their earnings in soil building practices than to use it in buying more or less nonessential commodities now that can be bought later at more reasonable prices.

Whether the outlay for soil improvement is primarily in cash or labor, the expenditure of either is worthwhile. Tests and experience have proved that money spent for pasture improvement or for the purchase of conservation materials such as lime and fertilizer to restore and increase the productive capacity of the soils can materially stabilize and increase farm income. So it is with the whole list of conservation practices, whether they be in the form of applying materials—or in carrying out more mechanical measures.

Mr. Gaskill also points out that investment in soil improvement is made even more attractive by the assistance rendered by the Agricultural Conservation Program. All farmers should take full advantage of the benefits offered. Those who have not yet completed their conservation work for this year should do so as soon as possible. Some may be experiencing difficulties in finding materials, labor, or equipment in required amounts at the time when needed, but an extended effort to overcome these obstacles will pay big dividends. Those who have already accomplished their practice plans for 1946 should begin now to look ahead to next year. There's real security in good soil.

TO KEEP YOUR ENGINE HEALTHY

Change FILTER ELEMENTS Regularly

Diagrammatic sketch showing filtering operation

The oil filter on your McCormick-Deering tractor protects the engine against wear caused by dirty oil. But unless the filter element is periodically replaced its purpose is defeated and no protection results. For your engine's sake... and the sake of your tractor investment... be sure to renew the filter element each time you change oil. Remember, the new-style "umbrella" element keeps oil clean and your engine protected for 120 hours of hard use (100 hours for Diesel engines). Take home a supply of these protective elements the next time you are in town.

HOW THE "UMBRELLA" FILTER ELEMENT WORKS

The element is made of two large sheets of special creped, impregnated cellulose—accordion-folded to form a double-walled cylinder. Oil from the crankcase is pumped under pressure into the filter housing where it completely envelopes the element. The oil is forced through tiny pores in the element and all sludge and dirt is retained on the outer surfaces. The clean oil passes down between the two sheets and goes back to the crankcase.

Telephone Company Continues To Handle Increased Toll Calls

With Long Distance traffic continuing to climb higher and higher to new record breaking peaks, Illinois Bell officials announced that the company is doing everything possible to expand facilities to adequately handle the staggering load of calls. As part of the company's $160,000,000 improvement and expansion program, thousands of miles of circuits are being added this year. Besides the many new switchboard positions already added, 938 more have been ordered, and hundreds of new operators are being trained.

"As might be expected, the war brought about a tremendous increase in Long Distance traffic," a spokesman for the company remarked. "And today almost a year after the war's end, the volume of Long Distance calls is still skyrocketing to new heights. In fact, in the Illinois Bell territory, Long Distance calls have increased 18.7 percent since last year at this time and 139 percent since prewar 1940." At the end of June this year, there were about 174,000 calls a day going over the Long Distance circuits. Last year at the end of June, the average number of calls per day was 147,000. In 1940, the figure was 73,000 calls per day.

There are several reasons why Long Distance calling has continued heavy even though the war is over. Increased business and industrial use of the telephone is one reason. Another is the fact that the Illinois Bell now serves 154,000 more telephones than it did a year ago at this time. The demand for service today is greater than it has ever been in the history of the telephone business, and the Illinois Bell is putting in telephones faster than ever before. Over 275,000 new telephones have been installed in the Illinois Bell territory since the war's end; yet there are still about 80,000 customers waiting for service.

Six years ago, before the start of the war and the beginning of the rush on Long Distance wires, less than 3000 circuits were needed to take care of the traffic. By June, 1945, the number of circuits had been increased to 5400. Today there are more than 6200 circuits in use, but still more are needed to enable the calls to speed through without delay.

Illinois Bell local and toll operating personnel has been greatly increased to care for this heavy volume of calls. Today there are 22,161 operating employees on the payroll, 73.3 percent more than the 12,885 needed in 1940, and 4165 more than last year at this time.

During the war years, all telephone equipment developed and manufactured by the Bell System was needed for war purposes, and little was available for civilian use. As a result, the Illinois Bell was unable to expand its facilities rapidly enough to handle the tremendous increase in calls, both local and Long Distance.

Now, however, the Western Electric Company, the Bell System's manufacturing branch, is working three shifts, producing peacetime equipment at wartime speed. The Illinois Bell, in turn, is pushing ahead to cut the new facilities and equipment into service just as rapidly as possible. However, it is a big job, and will take time. Adding new switchboards and cable is a time consuming task, involving many hand operations. Complex equipment must be designed and manufactured and tailor made to fit the particular needs of each area. It must then be delivered to highly skilled workmen who must do the intricate work of installing it.

Good Reasons for insisting on ADEQUATE WIRING

You'll probably want every one of these appliances in the new home you are building . . . but, unless you plan now for adequate wiring, you won't be able to enjoy them!

The best time to get adequate wiring is during the period of construction. That's why it is important to check with your contractor to be sure the wiring plans for your new home are adequate before you start to build. When you get adequate wiring you avoid unsightly extension cords, dimming lights, and "loafing" appliances.

With adequate wiring you'll have circuits enough to supply abundant electricity for all your present appliances as well as for those soon coming your way. And, you'll have plenty of convenience outlets where you can "plug them in."

Be sure to plan now to have adequate wiring in your new home. Our Home Building representative will be glad to help you plan so you will have adequate wiring in your home, or you can consult your electric contractor.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

Mokena Citizens Pay Youths Last Respect

Assisting Commander Don Neal was; Foster Myrick, Officer of the Day; Glen Peterson, Acting Senior Vice Commander and George Phelps, Junior Vice Commander of Wm. Martin Post, VFW. Salute was fired again, and for the last time for that day, Taps was sounded and the second burial was thus made in the newly created Veteran's section of St. John's cemetery.

Edward Tierney

Tuesday morning found Mokena friends again gathering for the last rites of one of their citizens, Edward Tierney another victim of the auto accident. It was again, St. Mary's Catholic church, where again was the flag draped casket amid a large bower of flowers. Indeed the church was too small to admit all sorrowing friends who came to pay their last respect.

In the absence of the local pastor, the Rev. Father Rock, of St. John's Catholic church in Joliet, officiated.

The pall bearers for their comrade were: Jack Horras, Earl Schoeneck, Robert Benson, Robert Clark, Gordon Benson and Gordon Spliss. Comrades who stood guard in the church during the service were: Nick Helman and George Rinke.

Edward was born in Chicago, Sept. 27, 1923 and when he was five years old, moved to Mokena with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Tierney. Here he attended school and grew to manhood. He answered the call of his country March 9, 1943 and served 2½ years in the Pacific theatre. He was wounded at Iwo Jima and received his medical discharge Aug. 18, 1945 and return to his home in Mokena.

The grave side service was also in charge of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Wm. Martin Post 725 with their Commander, Don Neal and Mr. Wm. M. Bollig doing the ritualistic work, as they did for their comrades the day before. The salute was fired by the same American Legion Post of Matteson, Ill., and the same bugler sounded Taps, as he did the day before. Edward was buried in the cemetery adjoining the church.

Surviving other than the parents, are two sisters, Mrs. Louis Stanger and Rita and one brother, David, a veteran of this war also.

MARYLOU HUTSON

Funeral services for the fifth victim of the auto accident, Miss Marylou Hutson was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the St. John Evangelical church with Rev. J. Frank Anderson of Tinley Park Methodist church officiating.

Evidence of many sympathetic friends and relatives were seen in the beautiful flowers.

Mr. Arthur Lambrecht of Frankfort sang, "In The Garden" and "Asleep In Jesus."

Burial was made in St. John's cemetery.

Marylou Hutson was born in Joliet March 9, 1927, and moved to Mokena with her mother, Mrs. Gilbert Hurley in 1938. Her mother was visiting relatives in Pennsylvania at the time of the accident and came home by plane when notified.

Beside her mother, Marylou is survived by her father Manning Hutson, Sr., of Joliet; a sister Lois of Mokena and brother Manning Hutson, Jr., also of Joliet.

The deceased was employed by the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., as a long distant telephone operator in Chicago, for the past six months.

HE GIVES PEACE AGAIN

No sparrow falls, but that He knows, No blade of grass—no lovely rose Can fade and die, but that His care Will give it life again, somewhere; No clouds so thick, but He can part Their folds of gray. No living heart Can ever be so filled with pain But that He gives it Peace again.

1946-47 SCHOOL YEAR

ATTENDANCE REGULATIONS

School attendance regulations are of a restrictive and compulsory nature.

Restrictive in that the law provides that a child who is not six (6) years of age by December 1 shall not be entitled to enter the first grade at the beginning of such school term.

The Will County School Principals and Superintendents Association went on record last spring as favoring adherence to the December 1 date and have so recommended to their boards.

Experience has demonstrated quite conclusively that for most children it is to their best interests that they be six years of age when subjected to the work of the first grade. The compulsory attendance law provides that all children under the age of sixteen shall attend school regularly. When ever a child arrives at the age of sixteen (16) during the school term he must then complete the term.

Frankfort Youths On Trip To Chicago

Twenty six members of the Green Garden Methodist Youth Fellowship, went to Chicago by chartered bus on Tuesday, August 20 to enjoy visiting places of interest in that city. The pastor, Rev. Lloyd Coleman accompanied them.

The first stop was at the NBC Broadcasting Station where they saw the Adam & Eve Quiz. Rev. Coleman was on that program.

From there they went to the Musical Mil kWagon, a Bowman production. After that they felt the need of refreshments so they went to Goldblatt's Terrace room where they enjoyed a good dinner. After that they went to the Museum of Science and Industry and after wandering all over that large building and seeing a portion that it contains, they were ready to go, tired but happy having enjoyed every minute of the day and all agreed the time was well spent.

Rufe's Ramblings

We are glad to present to our readers a new column, starting this week.

It is written by Mr. Rufe Pickett, conductor on the Rock Island Train which takes Mokena's students to the Joliet schools.

Mr. Pickett likes to write, and has done so for some time. He lives in Blue Island and has an imaginary rail road which he terms: "Windy Mountain and Eastern Railway", Route of the Memory.

He is head of the office of "Recollection at Large". We hope you will enjoy his ramblings each week.

As the train rolled across the trestle that spans the holler between Kin Folks Mountain and the next of the outlying Blue Ridges everybody looked down into the tops of the lofty pines growing on both banks of the Bearcat River and some old timer sez, "Young feller dropped off this bridge onst. Born and raised up in these parts. Worked on the section for awhile and then went to braking. Was walking across this trussel and got kotched by the up-freight. Got excited and overlooked the places where barrels of water air kept off to the side and he just swung onto a brace till the caboose went by. Reckon his arms got too tired for him to get back up on the crossties so he just hung onto life as long as he could and then let go and dropped. Hit was thirty year before anybody in these parts knew about hit"

"How did they ever find out what became of him," one of the other passengers asked.

"Well," sez the old timer, "shortly after that his name was called for the draft and after he got out of the army he went out west and started braking on another railroad and has been there ever since. The way everybody learnt about his experience was when he started writing a column for the home town paper. Said it was so dark that night that he had no idea he was a hanging thar' with his feet just a foot above the hillside at the end of the bridge. Thought that he was just about in the middle till he landed on his feet."

I listened to the old timer, and while I knew that there wasn't a kid who rides the 415 home from high school who couldn't have given me a better introduction than this, I sez to him, "What was the feller's name?"

"Name was Pickett," sez the old timer. "He is Sam Picketts boy Rufus."

The Eighth Homecoming of Mokena was held as scheduled last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The weather was good and hundreds of people attended from surrounding towns and cities.

The refreshment stand was an attractive spot as the hamburgers served were very delicious. Mrs. Kate Provic was in charge of the kitchen.

The Will County T. B. X-ray mobile unit was another attractive spot nearly 400 x-ray pictures taken during the three days.

The parade on Sunday was the finest ever held here with the Army sending a number of trucks and cars as their entry. The judges of the parade were: County Auditor Herman Grassie, John C. Cowing and John Kirinich, the latter two being candidates for County Judge and Sheriff on the Republican ticket at the coming November election.

OPA NEWS REPORT

Higher prices that Tinley Park shoppers are finding on washing machines, vacuum cleaners, radios, electric appliances, and other goods have been authorized by OPA under requirements of the new price control law passed by Congress, it was explained today by M. G. Johnston acting chairman of price control board 61-110.

"We continue in business to head off runaway inflation and these authorized higher prices are still considerably below what prices would be if they were permitted to rise to the full extent of today's heavy demand and limited supplies," he said.

"The increases allowed are mandatory and OPA is merely following the standards laid down by Congress in such a manner as to afford the maximum protection to the buying public that is possible under these standards.

Price tickets with the higher authorized OPA prices should be looked for by buyers in order that they know the price is legal Mr. Johnston said.

He added that in the consumer durable goods field OPA anticipates that the recently made increase is the last adjustment that will be necessary because of the provisions of the new law.

"Where OPA was obligated to carry out provisions of the statute, within 30 days, it held increases to the minimum required by the law," Mr. Johnston said.

Citizen reports of overcharges are still wanted by the price control board since its local obligation continues to be the holding of retail prices to the legal maximum.

rural school divisions will be reorganized for the coming school year. Each of the divisions will also name its officers during the session.

NOW THAT OPA IS BACK

It is quite likely that farm product prices will not rise more than enough to offset subsidies that are withdrawn, and that OPA will set few ceilings below current prices after subsidies are taken into consideration. In fact, many prices are now no higher than June prices plus subsidies. Supply and demand conditions, not price ceilings, will be the dominating influence on farm prices from now on.

The Price Decontrol Board had until August 20 to decide what farm product prices should be subject to control. It is not supposed to order recontrols unless prices had risen unreasonably (more than offsetting the subsidies) or unless the commodities are in short supply or the public interest would be served. Chairman Roy L. Thompson said that "the quicker we can find the possibility of getting things out from under price controls, the sooner we can arrive at the situation we're all looking for." Maximum prices can be applied only to farm commodities certified by the Secretary of Agriculture as being in short supply. That means that by December grains probably will be exempt.

ROARING UP MOUNTAIN SIDE . . . Racer in the annual Labor Day classic is shown negotiating one of the breath-taking hairpin curves, bordered by rocky walls, which mark the treacherous ascent to 14,110-foot Pikes Peak. In the background can be glimpsed a panorama of the mighty Rockies.

'DADDY OF 'EM ALL'

Spectacular Pikes Peak Speed Classic Revived

By WNU Features

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—Nature and man have contrived to provide the world's most spectacular and grueling testing grounds for an automobile on Pikes Peak, one of America's most famous mountains, where the annual Labor Day auto races will be revived this year after a wartime lapse.

A record field of big-time drivers is expected to vie for $7,500 in prize money posted for the race against time up the famous Pikes Peak highway, William H. Geisler of the Pikes Peak information bureau reports.

Rise of 6,000 Feet.

The highway, known as the "world's most wonderful motor road," is a double track boulevard, 20 to 50 feet wide for the entire distance, and as smooth and even as pavement. Breath-taking hairpin curves mark the entire course, which is noted for the sensational rise of more than 6,000 feet in approximately 12½ miles.

From many points on the course, visitors may look downward thousands of feet to the starting point and watch the speed demons climb the rock-walled sides of the giant peak to the snow-clad summit above the clouds.

Equally thrilling is the magnificent view, heralded as the most spectacular ever beheld from an automobile. A vast, 300-mile panorama of the mighty Rockies can be viewed from the New Mexico border line on the south, through the entire state of Colorado, to Wyoming on the north. Eastward, the billowy ocean of plains rolls far into Kansas while spread out below like a huge black carpet is the Pike national forest.

Started in 1916.

This year's renewal of the race, the first since 1941, will be on the 30th anniversary of the first race. The Pikes Peak auto hill climb was inaugurated in 1916 by the late Spencer Penrose, millionaire philanthropist of Colorado Springs and the Pikes Peak region.

Since that time, every famous race driver has competed on the famous serpentine course. The annual race classic has grown in popularity and importance until today it ranks with the Memorial Day race at Indianapolis.

Often dubbed the "daddy of 'em all" in the realm of hill climbs, the Pikes Peak race assumes proportions of an international event with cars and drivers entered from foreign countries as well as the United States.

Undergo Severe Strain.

As the racers roar up the steep slopes of Pikes Peak, their vehicles undergo terrific tests which are used by manufacturers as the basis for new car improvements. From the tires to the spark plugs, the test of strength and stamina is more intensive than any required of a regular passenger car.

The graveled roadbed with its hairpin curves and steep grades is a severe test for tires. The climb of 6,000 feet in a short distance demands expert performance for carburetion, cooling, ignition, spark plugs, wiring and other parts of the motor, as well as a real test of oil and gas.

Thorne to Compete.

Among the big-time drivers scheduled to compete in this year's classic are Joel Thorne, wealthy California racing enthusiast whose car won the Indianapolis Memorial day race; George Berringer, famous Indianapolis racer; Louis Unser, six times winner of the Pikes Peak race, who set the race record of 15 minutes, 34½ seconds in 1941; Rene LeBeque and Jean Treveaux, well-known French racers; Al Rogers and Johnny Morrow.

Of the total prize money of $7,500, first place winner will receive $3,000. Six prizes are posted, $2,000 going to second, $1,000 to third, $750 to fourth, $500 to fifth and $250 to sixth.

SIDES FOR NEXT WAR

PARIS. — Perhaps it has ceased to be news but, even so, it can't be emphasized too often that this so-called peace conference is actually a choosing up of sides for another war unless something vital and electrifying in the way of diplomacy steps in to prevent it.

Events are moving with terrific speed while this conference moves with humdrum slowness. In the Russian zone of Germany, 12 factories are pouring out munitions for the Red army. In Czechoslovakia, the sum of 400 million dollars has been appropriated for munitions — all of a standard type, interchangeable with either the Czech or the Red army. Yugoslavia and Poland also are pouring out standardized Russian arms.

Meanwhile this peace conference talks sonorously, piously of procedure and precedents. Meanwhile, also, the sides are chosen — the line-up, unless heroic measures head it off—for the next war.

The line-up of Russian satellites never varies. In all the conference voting from San Francisco through the United Nations assembly in New York to Paris, Russia's stooges only once voted against their masters in the Kremlin. That was when Byelorussia got its signals crossed. Russia can be absolutely sure of the following votes on every rollcall, come hell or high water: Byelorussia, the Ukraine, Poland, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

The line-up on the other side varies. It is significant that the British dominions frequently desert England. This proves there's real democracy in the British empire. Australia and New Zealand vote more than half the time against England; Canada about 50-50. South Africa and India frequently are aligned with England, although not always.

The most forthright leaders of the anti-Soviet bloc are Australia, the Netherlands, Brazil and Belgium.

Note—Most pathetic satellite in the Soviet line-up is Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, now nicknamed "The Prisoner of Zenda." Son of old President Thomas Masaryk, who founded the Czechoslovak republic in Pittsburgh in 1918 under the godfatherhood of Woodrow Wilson, Jan Masaryk's sympathies are all with the United States and Britain. But with his country solidly surrounded by Russia, he votes consistently with the Russian bloc.

ACCUSED OF SNOOPING

It isn't being advertised but Lt. Gen. Sir John Harding, commander of Allied forces in Venezia Giulia, has sent a hot cable to the White House and the British foreign office against dynamic ex-Mayor La Guardia of New York, accusing the fiery Fiorello of snooping in Trieste. General Harding demanded that the White House and the British crack down on La Guardia and prevent him from slandering American and British troops in Trieste. In fact, General Harding even threatened his resignation unless he got full support. As a result the British, which have some jurisdiction over La Guardia because UNRRA is international, sent New York's former mayor an appeal to pipe down.

Apparently it did no good, however. It was after receiving the London appeal that Fiorello boasted that 25 good New York cops could clean up the thieving in Trieste. La Guardia previously had demanded that the Anglo-American troops in Trieste prevent the wholesale disappearance of UNRRA supplies.

Note—During the war, F. D. R. promised La Guardia a commission as brigadier general and the job of helping to govern Italy, but the army brass hats blocked it. Apparently they figured they could never handle the ferocious Little Flower. British generals now think their American colleagues were right.

DON'T MISS A TRICK

Chief trouble with the American delegation at this peace conference is that it lets the opposing team take too many bases on balls and steal second too many times. Meanwhile, the Russians are on the umpire's neck, yelling themselves hoarse over every close decision.

They don't miss a trick. If a bunt down the first baseline is called a foul, the Russians will argue until blue in the face that it was a fair ball. Finally, the opposing side gets tired of wrangling and arguing and gives in.

MOLOTOFF COCKTAIL

The hard-hitting, mercurial foreign minister of Russia has changed his tactics a lot since the United Nations conference at San Francisco. Also, since the council of foreign ministers in London last September.

At Paris, Molotoff is playing his cards more carefully. Perhaps he realizes that public opinion has crystallized against Russia. At any rate, instead of hurling Molotoff cocktails when things go against him, he has been outwardly calm.

BIG CITY ADVERTISING PROVIDES 'FREE' LESSONS

CARSON, PIRIE, SCOTT & CO., of Chicago, operates a State street department store with sales running into many millions of dollars each year. That volume of sales is attracted through the store's advertising, appearing every day in the Chicago daily papers.

One of the highest paid executives of that store is the advertising manager. He knows sales psychology; what will cause people to buy. He knows the what, when and how of effective advertising. Every paragraph, every sentence, every phrase and every word of the copy of his advertising is carefully weighed in the scales of his trained ability.

Some 100 miles west of Chicago is a good country town of some 1,500 people, surrounded by a trade territory in which there are another 1,500 to 2,000 people. That town has several good stores with adequate stocks of merchandise to meet the requirements of the people of that community, but whose sales do not represent anything like all the purchases of the town and its trade territory.

No store in that town does, or could expect to do, a large enough business to warrant the employment of a capable, efficient advertising manager. The newspaper of the town would profit from the employment of such a man as would know the what, when and how of advertising by each of those local merchants. The publisher bewails the fact that he does not get the advertising he should because the merchants do not possess the know-how of effective advertising.

It has not occurred to either those merchants, or to that publisher that the extremely capable advertising manager employed by Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., is showing them every day, every week, what to advertise, when to advertise, and how to advertise the merchandise they have to offer. That advertising manager cannot cover up his ability. He displays it in every ad carried by the Chicago dailies. Through that advertising, circulated in that local town and its trade territory, through the distribution of Chicago daily papers in the community, Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. is attracting sales to the people that might be buying in the home stores. Advertising of equal effectiveness would keep much of that business at home.

What is true of Chicago and that local Illinois town, is equally true of all sections of the nation. It is a condition that could be remedied to some extent, at least, if both the merchants and the publishers would but watch, and imitate, the advertising methods and copy of the effective advertising managers employed by the large stores of the nearest cities. Each day and each week these high salaried, capable men offer, for all to see, examples of what, when and how advertising, the kind that sells merchandise. These examples can easily be applied to the stocks offered by the local stores, by either the merchants or the publisher. It would mean increased profits for both.

EUROPEAN NATIONS TRY TO 'BLACKMAIL' UNITED STATES

UNCLE SAM, it would seem, has become the victim of blackmail on the part of European nations. They know we wish to preserve world peace, with no reparations or territorial demands, other than a few small islands in the Pacific as naval and air bases. They are willing to co-operate so long as we keep on paying. "Pay, or we start shooting," is the demand and threat. England would have us pay for peace in Palestine, Russia would have us finance her reparation bill against Italy. Greece, Austria, Hungary, France and others are demanding American dollars to keep them quiet and peaceable. It might be well to show them a few battleships and atom bombs, and call their bluff. We have done most of the paying, and a full share of the fighting in the effort to establish world peace for everybody. There is a limit and we have passed that limit.

THE TWO CENTS TAX on each dollar of wages earned—one cent paid by the worker and one by the employer—has been enough to meet all the expense of social security. In addition, it has produced a large surplus, represented by government IOUs. To increase the tax beyond the present two cents could mean only that the government is seeking additional general revenues to meet the federal deficit, or have more money to spend.

ISLANDER TENDS U. S. GRAVES . . . A Solomon islander, wearing the traditional ceremonial hibiscus in his hair, cuts the tropical greens and weeds in the U. S. cemetery on Guadalcanal. Now it is a quiet scene, with stately palms and their fronds rustling in the breeze overlooking the same terrain where the marines pushed forward on their historic landing four years ago.

Ceremony Marks Centennial of Flag-raising

MONTEREY, CALIF. — To commemorate the 100th anniversary of first hoisting of the United States flag over California soil, an historic flag-raising ceremony was held here. The Stars and Stripes were first flown by Com. John D. Sloat at Monterey 100 years ago.

The flag was broken out on an exact replica of the pole of Monterey pine put up by Sloat's forces, and it was erected in the same rock cairn that supported the original one. Remains of that staff and cairn recently were discovered in excavations at the old Customs House.

A 40-year-old tree from the Del Monte forest was selected to correspond with the measurements provided by Col. Roger S. Fitch, president of Monterey History and Art association, and Dr. D. T. MacDougal of Carmel, retired director of Carnegie institution and authority on history.

FILM PRODUCER GETS EAR IN MAIL

It seems that there was a bandit in the old West by the name of Joaquin Murieta.

A movie fan heard that Columbia Pictures was making a big Western picture in Technicolor down in Hollywood and he had an interesting souvenir of Murieta, so he wrote a letter.

It arrived at Columbia Studio recently, on the desk of Michel Kraike, producer of the Evelyn Keyes' picture, "Renegades", which can now be seen at the Roxy Theatre. Kraike replied that he wouldn't be able to use the souvenir. It was supposedly Murieta's ear, preserved in a jar.
